

Great seventy research paper topic ideas – 2022 Guide

Topic selection is the first important step of writing a research paper and youessaywriter.net is here to help. A thoughtful research topic would signify the credibility of your whole research paper. Therefore, it is very important that you pay good heed to topic selection. Usually, students find it difficult to select a perfect topic for their research paper. It happens due to the lack of interest in a particular field and lack of background knowledge in a certain area. I must say, topic selection is minor research that you conduct in a particular field before moving on to write a research paper. In this regard, there are several ways through which you can improve your abilities to select credible topics for your essay. This article provides valuable information on the selection of topics for the research paper. You should carefully read the following paragraphs to develop a firm understanding about the process of topic selection while writing a research paper.

Topic selection is a tricky as well as a gradual process. The tricks to topic selection are common and general ones. For instance, you should think about the relevance of the topic before selecting it. Likewise, do also consider the contemporary significance of the topic. By doing so, it would be easy for you to problematize your main thesis or arguments. I must say, you should never choose an outdated topic for your research paper that lacks time relevance.

You need the required background knowledge about a particular field wherein you are entitled to conduct your research. For example, if you are a political science student, you should know about the key terminologies, theories, and concepts related to the field. Moreover, you should follow the current debate and trends in the field. In other words, you should know the historical, theoretical, and contemporary aspects of the field. It will enable you to grasp the major discussions and the theme of your areas of interest. To put it otherwise, these pieces of information and knowledge could be acquired in a gradual manner. You can't become a master of any subject overnight, it takes time. However, there are certain tricks as well that you should know. There are many burning issues across the world that can be the topic for your research paper. For instance:

The economic impact of covid-19 on Black Americans

Global politics: a case study of vaccine diplomacy

The impact of Global warming on sub-Saharan Africa

Covid-19 and the deteriorating mental health situations of white Americans

Taliban's victory in Afghanistan through the perspective of feminist discourse

Covid-19 recession and global trade

The advent of patient care nursing model and challenges for traditional nurses

The downside of European football leagues: A case study of the English premier league.

The legal challenges to abortion

How to do essay writing?

The impact of structure on racism

Covid-19 recession and unemployment

The global economic crunch due to covid-19

The U.S withdrawal and afghanistan's economic prospects

Global War on terrorism with the lense of PVE

The endemic racism and institutional fragility

State fragility and extremism

The decline of western order

The modern techniques of urban development

The socio-economic impacts of environment

Green politics: the beginning of a new era

The rise of China and its impacts on the Western world

Geopolitics and south China sea crisis

Urban planning and population growth

The psychology of childcare

The impact of public healthcare impacts on the GDP of a nation

Green economy and the future of CO2

The mentioned topics fulfill the rule of having contemporary significance. You should look for at least twenty other topics that carry contemporary significance for your research by following the rules. As an free essay writer, you won't find it difficult to connect different aspects of an event to make it a topic for your research paper.

Another thing you should bear in mind is to always narrow down the topic to make it specific. The incorporation of too general and vague topics may affect the authenticity of your research paper. The more specific topic you select, the more credible and authentic your research would be considered. Ask yourself a question about how I as an essay writer would write my paper, before confirming the topic. In this regard, the self-assessment would enable you to narrow down the topic, eventually, lead you to garner a perfect topic for your research. For example, some of the topics could be:

The mortality rate of Covid-19 among people aging 20-30 years in Virginia

Impact of global warming on Canada: a case study of Quebec region

The relation between bullying and depression: a case study of American school kids

The importance of mental health for Human development index

The positive sides of global warming

The advent of geo economics and future of geopolitics

The revival of Russian and future of communism

The impact of individualism on British literature

The social impacts of sadism in British literature

The decadence of Western literature

The journey from women suffrage to women rights

The fourth wave of feminism and commodification of women

The legacy of Roman empire in western politics

Is paper writing service any good?

Ping-pong to twitter diplomacy: An era of transformation

The divergence of Christianity and future of religion in Europe

Kant's moral religion: A social perspective

The advent of artificial intelligence and future of traditional technology

The advent of robotics: A revolution in global workforce

Meta-Analyses of Behaviorism

The skepticism on religion and the advent of far-right

Additionally, you can also take advice from a professional dissertation writing services to guide you through your topic selection process. There are more suggestions you should rely upon:

Vaccine diplomacy and the emergence of new alliances

The neurological effect of Covid-19

The revolution in epigenetics and cancer treatment

The biological impacts of stem treatment

Scarcity of resources and the concentration of wealth

The history of universe and global warming

The eruption of volcanoes and big bang theory

The evolution of galaxy and pluto

SpaceX and space politics

The privatising of space and the advent of space companies

The toxic chemicals in the atmosphere and air pollution

The biology of monkeys and darwinism: A critical study

Hibernation of animals and Osmosis

Offshore mining companies and global pollution

The legalisation of marijuana and mental health issue

The reduction of antibiotics in agricultural productions

The transformation in agriculture and urban farming

Sustainable development and tourism

Tech-economy and the race for space

Environmental protocols and Co2 emissions across the world

The politics of environment and global warming

The securitization of security: an ethical dilemma

The resurgence of nuclear race: a case study of South and North korea

The new cold War between China and America

The rise of Eurasia: a challenge for atlanticism

Living with Covid-19: A new normal

To sum up, the topic selection for your research paper is the fundamental thing that enables you to work in a particular domain. Your research topic should be specific, try to conduct research before selecting a topic.

Useful Resources:

The Basic Format of Presentation Speech

How To Format A Personal Statement?

Best Personal Statement Writing Examples

How To Write An Impressive Thesis Proposal

25+ Engaging Thesis Topic Ideas

How To Write A Case Study Step By Step